DRIVEN BACK BY BULLETS OF BRITISH

London Hears That Germans
Are Preparing to Retreat

MAUBEUGE FALLS INTO
HANDS OF INVADERS

French Loss of Forty Thousand Prisoners and Four Hundred Guns the Only Disturbing Factor From Allies' Standpoint—German Pace Has Been Too Speedy and Troops Are Fatigued—Abrupt Stoppage of Equipment and Hurling Back of Advance Has Thrown German Lines Into Confusion—Frenzied Attempts to Check Allies Are Met With Attack After Attack Along the Centre

The Germans are preparing to retreat. This is the stirring word that has reached London.

The official French report, issued at Bordeaux, states that appearances seem to indicate that the Germans are preparing for such an unlooked for and inglorious anti-climax to their relentless sweep into French territory.

From unofficial sources it is learned that the conservative estimate of the French government is based upon apparently unmistakable evidences of activity extending along practically the whole rear of the German armies.

Observers from aeroplanes, which have been hovering by scores over the German lines, have brought back the tidings that a general retirement has begun and that the roads to the north are being scoured by cavalry and watched from above by airmen.

It is too early to prophesy that the German armies, a week ago so confident of victory, will now seek refuge from the bullets of the allies in flight toward the German, the Luxemburg and the Belgian boundaries. But every official and unofficial message received in London confirms the possibility.

Maubeuge in German Hands
The fall of Maubeuge, reported officially from Berlin and generally accepted as true, despite the fact that no confirmation has come from Paris or Bordeaux, has been the only disturbing factor in the news from the standpoint of the allies. The loss of 40,000 prisoners and 400 guns, even if the German reports do not later prove to have been exaggerated, cannot dampen the ardor that has been aroused in London by the news of greater successes by the British and French troops on the long battle line from Paris to Verdun.

Each hour Wednesday, largely due to the unceasing courage and the deadly fire of the British soldiers, the positions of the allies were improved. The British, who had been driven back over the Marne by the advancing German army under General von Kluck, recrossed the river, drove the enemy before them and they are now twenty-five miles in advance of the positions that they held Tuesday. The tremendous distance gained indicates that the German resistance, although bitter at first, relaxed greatly during the progress of the fighting, and that in the later hours was hardly felt at all.

Germans Nearly Worn Out
Fatigue and the unprecedented speed of the German movement from the north appear to have wrecked the invaders' chances, just as keen military observers prophesied ten days or more ago.

As long as they were marching forward, the ammunition and provisions, in trains and hundreds of motor vans, were able to keep the German force well equipped. But with the sudden check, which has developed into a retreat in the region of Paris, the abrupt stoppage and hurling back of the advance has caused a confusion on the long lines of communication that threatens to grow into a chaos.

The same thing was apparent in the early days of the war when Liege so surprisingly halted the German onset. For a few days stories of hardships due to lack of food were constantly heard. Then the tangle was straightened out and since that time the provisioning has moved like clock-work.

But Liege was so near the German boundary that the problem there was comparatively easy in contrast to that which is presented today. The long railroad lines, almost choked with trains even when the advance was moving, are now rumored to be almost at a standstill owing to the inability of the Germans to rearrange their schedules on such sudden and such unexpected notice.

Must Hold Lines to Benefit
Ammunition is said to be coming to the front even more slowly than food. The capture of Maubeuge will prove an inestimable benefit to the Germans if they can hold their lines in front of the long beleaguered city, for through it passes the best line of railroad into that part of France controlled by the Germans. But if the retreat proves to be a fact, Maubeuge will have held out too long to be of advantage to the invaders.

Fatigue, too, has done its part. The Germans who have been driving back the British and French have been spurred forward at a pace that now threatens to impair their usefulness as a fighting machine.

This was evidenced Wednesday in the battling along the Ourcq and Marne rivers, where the conflict raged more severely than elsewhere. This division has evidently been weakened to strengthen the German centre, where a desperate attempt has been made to pierce the lines of the allies. The French and British drove back the enemy as swiftly as they had themselves been hurled back in that headlong pursuit out of Belgium toward Paris.

Early in the day the Germans made frenzied attempts to beat back the allies who were stationed on the right bank of the Ourcq. Just as in all the fighting that has gone on here since Saturday, the assaults failed, and later the charges of the British and French could not be withstood. The allies gave no mercy to the retreating Germans. Word had gone out that the supplies of ammunition in the hostile ranks were falling and attack after attack was delivered as they fell back.

No Impression Upon Allies' Lines
In the centre, where the German hope for ultimate triumph rests in a desperate attempt to mass their strength and to batter into halves the armies opposing them, the invaders failed to make any impression upon the strong lines of the allies.

General Joffre's wisdom in choosing his battlefield was apparent. The reinforcements sent to the centre from the retreating right wing of the Germans were compelled to struggle through a region of swamps and then over barren uplands swept by the effective French artillery.

Renewed efforts will probably be made by the Germans to strike here with such terrific strength that the lines of the allies will have to bend and finally break. But the high ground held by the French artillery will be able, it is confidently predicted in Paris, to hold this movement in check until the British and French from the neighborhood of Paris will be in a position to strike at the flank of this formidable German centre.

Great Battle Is Looked For
A battle of greater moment than those of the last four days is expected now in the centre of the embattled lines. The French appear to hold such a superior position that it seems improbable that the Germans can batter their way through and under the armies of the allies.

The Germans are hurrying reinforcements to Fer Champsenoise, Sommesous and Sompuis, but they must occupy inferior positions. Whatever hope the Germans have of winning in the centre must come from reinforcements driven in from the northeast. The cessation of battling about Nancy points to a hurried rush to strengthen the centre.

Here, or nowhere, it appears from the dispatches, the Germans must win. If they fail, they can hardly wage another decisive battle south of Belgium.

BRITISH CRUISER SUNK

Second to Be Blown Up by Mine in the North Sea

The light cruiser Pathfinder, of the British navy, has been blown up by a mine in the North sea. The loss of life is not definitely known. Paymaster Finch was killed and Commander Leake was wounded. Six junior officers and two petty officers are missing.

The Pathfinder is the second British cruiser to be blown up by mines in the North sea. She was of 2940 tons and carried a complement of 268 men. She was commissioned at Portsmouth in October, 1913, and was attached to the English flotilla.

ALLIES SIGN COMPACT

All Three Nations Must Consent Before Peace Can Be Made

"All for one; one for all" is the gist of the latest pact between members of the triple entente. By this new pledge, signed at London by representatives of the British, French and Russian governments, they agree that peace shall not be concluded separately during the present war by any one of the allies and that no one of the allies will demand conditions of peace without the previous agreement of the others.

As a result of this agreement there will be no rest for the Kaiser even in event of the capture of Paris and the defeat of the allied armies in France. He cannot treat for peace with them as long as the czar's forces still menace from the north.

BREAK WITH THE KAISER

His Chief Statesmen Blamed For Rupture of Diplomacy

The Berlin correspondent of the Rome newspaper Messaggero wires that the Kaiser has broken with Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and Minister of Foreign Affairs Von Jagow.

The correspondent says the Kaiser blames them for England's participation in the war, which came as a complete surprise to him, and also for Italy's failure to live up to her treaty obligations. The Kaiser is declared to have told them that when it was most needed German diplomacy had failed the German people. The correspondent adds that both statesmen have tendered their resignations.

BLAMES GERMANY FOR WAR

British Premier Appeals to Country For More Volunteers

Premier Asquith appealed to the men of England to volunteer for military service. Despite the rapid enlistment that has been proceeding since Lord Kitchener called for an additional army of 600,000 men, it has not been fast enough to suit the government.

The premier referred to the heroic work of the Belgians against the Germans and declared that "the greatest crime against civilization was the sacking of Louvain." He asserted that "one power, and one power only, is responsible for the war, and that power is Germany."

KAISER CABLES TO WILSON

Protests Use of Dum-Dum Bullets and Activity of Belgian Citizens

President Wilson received a personal cablegram from Emperor William of Germany protesting against the use by the allied army of dum-dum bullets and the participation in the war by civilians of Belgium.

The message expressed also the emperor's deep regret at the destruction of the Belgian city of Louvain. He declared, however, that the population of Belgium had offered such resistance that his generals had in many cases found it necessary to administer severe punishment. The contents of the message were closely guarded.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE ## WAR IN EUROPE

Many wounded soldiers are arriving in Berlin every day as also are large numbers of prisoners from various armies.

A Serbian official statement gives new and fuller details of the battle of Jedar. The Austrian force, it says, was composed of 200,000 men and held a favorable position. By its retreat it admitted defeat. The Austrians left on the field of battle 10,000 dead and more than 20,000 wounded.

Large figures have a fascination for the European war dispatch writers. One says that 250,000 Russians have landed in France, which may be so, and another quotes a "high German officer" as saying that the Germans have lost 500,000 men—which is probably not so.

The German governor has ordered the people of Liege to remain indoors, and this is construed as indicating that a general movement of German troops toward the frontier from France and Belgium has begun.

Servian invasion of Austria by three armies under command of the crown prince has begun.

Louvain reports that priceless works of art were destroyed by the Germans there, namely "the Descent from the Cross," "The Last Supper" and the fifteenth century screen entitled "The Martyrdom of St. Erasmus."

The British cruiser Glory arrived at Halifax with the Spanish steamer Montserrat, on which were 150 men said to be Austrian and German reservists, in tow. The Montserrat sailed from New York Sept. 6 for Barcelona, Cadiz and Genoa.

Bordeaux, the temporary capital of France, is filled with refugees from the north, whose care is seriously troubling the government. The department of the interior, which is in general charge of all relief work, is so congested that there is much suffering among the refugees and little chance of speedy relief. The influx continues.

Crowded with 1570 refugees from the European war zone, the Cunard liner Laconia docked in Boston. She was the most completely disguised steamship that has reached Boston since the war began.

The upper half of the liner was painted gray and at a short distance she looked like a United States warship.

The danger of serious reprisals at the hands of the German army as the result of the killing of one officer and the wounding of another by a machine gun contingent at Ghent after the burgomaster had arranged to prevent the occupation of the town in force has been averted.

GALICIA TAKEN OVER BY CZAR

Signs Proclamation Declaring
It a Russian Province

AUSTRIANS CLOSELY PRESSED

Their Armies Almost Completely Surrounded by Superior Russian Force and Surrender Is Expected—Epidemic of Disease Adds to Other Heavy Losses—Vienna Fears Worst

Galicja is now a Russian province. An official proclamation signed by Czar Nicholas, making this announcement, emphasizes the extent of the great Russian victory over Austria.

All of eastern Galicja as far as the river San is now declared to be held by the Russians, and they are reported to have crossed the San in great force south of Przemysl and to be marching northward to attack that city and Jaroslav in both front and rear. It is the intention of the Russian general staff to take these positions as soon as possible so that a general movement northward against the remnants of the Austrian army can be begun.

The Austrian armies of General Aulenberg, former Austrian minister of war, and General Dankl are reported as almost completely surrounded by a vastly superior Russian force.

Their surrender is looked for. Already they have suffered terrible losses. They are now penned in northern Galicja and in Russian Poland near Krasnik and Zamosc, being attacked from the front by a Russian army totalling nearly 400,000 men with more than 1000 guns. In addition, another strong Russian army is advancing from the southeast to attack the Austrians and their German reinforcements from the flank.

But it is not alone the Russian army that the Austrians are fighting. Their sanitary arrangements have been very bad and an epidemic of disease is reported among the troops. Thousands of Austrians have died of dysentery and already many of the Austrian prisoners are suffering from the dread disease. Because of this all of the Austrian prisoners, including the wounded, have been isolated.

That the Vienna government realizes the seriousness of the situation is shown by reports from the Russian secret agents that Vienna is being prepared for a siege. Thousands of men have been put to work strengthening the Vienna defenses and a complete new line of entrenchments is being constructed around the city. Heavy guns are being mounted and the natural advantages of the city are being utilized to every possible extent.

The Russians are advancing through the entire territory between the Vistula and the Bug rivers. In addition, the Russians, as the result of the extreme mobility of the Cossack cavalry, have been able to command the passes through the Carpathian mountains. This will open the way for an advance into Hungary along the direct road to Budapest.

PEACE PRAYER DAY

President Wilson Designates Oct. 4 as Day of Supplication

Washington, Sept. 9.—President Wilson designated Sunday, Oct. 4, as the day of prayer in the United States for peace in Europe.

The proclamation requests all God-fearing persons "to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God that, overruling the counsel of the men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in His mercy and goodness showing the way where men can see none, He vouchsafe His children healing peace again and restore once more that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world; praying also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His will, our wilfulness and many errors and lead in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise."

TO BRING $100,000,000

President Personally Urges Congress to Rush New Legislation

President Wilson addressed a joint session of congress and advocated prompt measures to secure new revenue to meet the deficiency caused by the destruction of customs receipts due to the European conflict. He believes about $100,000,000 will be necessary to place the treasury and business in general on a sound basis.

President Wilson urged legislation to raise $100,000,000 a year additional revenue through internal taxes to meet a treasury deficit threatened by the conflict in Europe.

The president suggested that the tax be placed "on a very few commodities" and so placed that no heavy burden will fall upon any particular class of citizens. He hoped and believed, he said, that the legislation will not long be in force. The form of the measure is left to the discretion of the committees of congress which handle revenue legislation.

CORONATION OF BENEDICT XV

European War Causes Curtailment of Usual Pomp

SIXTY CARDINALS PARTICIPATE

High Dignitaries of Papal Court, Patriarchs, Archbishops, Oriental Bishops and Roman Aristocracy Present at Ceremony—Pontiff Receives Three American Cardinals

The coronation of Pope Benedict XV. took place in the Sistine chapel at Rome. The ceremony was imposing in its solemnity. The Sistine chapel was used for the occasion in order to avoid pomp during the war that is in progress. The entire pontifical court, members of the Roman aristocracy and the family of the pontiff were present.

© 1914, by American Press Association.
POPE BENEDICT XV.

The scene with Pope Benedict seated in the sedia gestatoria chair, preceded by the bearers of the triple crown and flanked by the bearers of the celebrated feather fans and sixty cardinals in their full vestments, was a striking one.

The entire armed corps of the holy see saluted the passage of the procession, which was formed in the pope's apartments, and then proceeded to the Pauline chapel, where the adoration of the holy sacrament was celebrated. In the procession were high dignitaries of the papal court, patriarchs, archbishops and oriental bishops.

From the Pauline chapel the procession moved to the Sistine chapel, where a mass was said. After the indulgentiam the sub-deacon placed the maplin on the arm of the pope, who sat down while the cardinals of the diocese of Rome recited the coronation prayer.

The pope then mounted the altar and a cardinal placed the pallium on his shoulders. At this moment Benedict XV. received the last adoration of the cardinals, bishops and abbots. Then he read the introit, intoned the Gloria and resumed his seat on the throne.

Later in the day Pope Benedict received successively in private audience Cardinals Gibbons, Farley and O'Connell, who presented their suites and some American friends to the pontiff.

Cardinal Della Chiesa was elected pope in succession to the late Pius X. He will assume the name of Benedict XV.

Cardinal Della Chiesa was created a cardinal May 25, 1914. He is the archbishop of Bologna, Italy. He was born at Pegli, in the diocese of Genoa, Nov. 21, 1854, and was ordained a priest Dec. 21, 1878.

The election was on the ninth ballot. With all the ceremony prescribed by the centuries-old traditions of the Catholic church the new occupant of the fisherman's throne received the first adoration of the cardinals in the conclave who had balloted since Monday.

Cardinal Domenico Ferrata has been appointed papal secretary of state. He was born in 1847 in Italy.

David J. Palmer of Washington, Ia., member of the Eighth and Twenty-Fifth Iowa regiments in the Civil war, was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the closing session of the forty-eighth national encampment at Detroit.

Washington, D. C., was unanimously chosen for the encampment place next year.

GATES FOR GOVERNOR

Nominated by Vermont Republicans on the Second Ballot

Charles W. Gates was nominated for governor by Vermont Republicans at the state convention. Gates won on the second ballot, when he obtained six more than a majority of the votes.

The remainder of the ticket nominated was as follows: Lieutenant governor, Hale K. Darling; secretary of state, Guy W. Bailey; auditor of accounts, H. F. Graham; treasurer, Walter Scott; attorney general, Herbert G. Barker; United States senator, William P. Dillingham.

The convention adopted a platform which endorsed the Republican policy of tariff legislation and favored direct primaries, the extension of state highways and woman suffrage.

FORTUNES FOR FARMERS

Five Leading Crops This Year Valued at More Than $4,000,000,000

This is the golden year for the American farmer. His five leading crops for 1914 were worth $4,352,000,000 on Sept. 1, leading Chicago grain men estimate, using the government's crop report as a basis.

This is $682,000,000 more than the farmer received last year for the same five crops—wheat, corn, oats, barley and hay—and forecasts the richest returns to the soil tillers in the history of the United States.

Eventually, the grain men point out, this more than $4,000,000,000 in "farm prosperity" must trickle through until general business conditions reflect the increase in crop values.

The Coming Primary

The quietest thing in Andover is just as quiet as it is everywhere else, and its name is politics. Within the next two weeks we are to have the primary, and from present appearances, there are about seventeen persons out of every thousand really interested in the result. We have a notion as to the reason for this apathy, and we don't believe it is entirely because the foreign war is so consuming in its demand upon our interest, but let the reason go at the present moment.

In Democratic politics, the interest is confined almost entirely to the contests for the minor offices. In Republican politics, practically every place upon the ticket has three or more competitors. We are inclined to think this is a mighty good thing, provided the public will cast votes enough to make a real bona fide choice. It is difficult for most people to see why the men who were honored last year with the nominations, if they are again candidates this year, should not be preferred in the present contest, where there is to follow an opportunity for securing election. If they were good enough to bear Republican principles a year ago, they are good enough today, and this applies to Col. Goetting, who is a candidate for Lieutenant Governor; Mr. Burrill, who is a candidate for State Treasurer; and to Mr. Kinney, who is a candidate for Secretary of State.

The re-entry of Mr. Langtry into the field for this latter office makes a contest that is entirely unnecessary. Mr. Langtry has always wanted to be taken care of, and he has been cared for by his appointment as a member of the State House commission, a job which he insists he should still hold if he were elected State Treasurer. From this it would seem as if the public better let him hold that job without overwhelming him with the cares of an office in which he did not make a record that demands any great consideration at this time.

Mr. Kinney is a young man, possessed of ability certainly no less than that possessed by Mr. Langtry, and is a representative of the young men in politics at a time when the young men in politics would better be recognized. He should receive this nomination without opposition, but if he must have opposition, his victory should be an emphatic one.

For State Auditor, it looks very much as if the nomination on the Republican ticket were to come to a French-American citizen of Lawrence, who is well and favorably known, Joseph Monette, an attorney of that city. Men who have known Mr. Monette for years speak in the highest terms of him, and while we have no sympathy for that silly effort that is frequently made to "balance the ticket," in this particular case qualifications are so high, and worth is so great that it is a pleasure to say a good word for the Essex County candidate.

Perhaps we shall realize in time for the primary, the importance of the pending campaign. Let us hope so, for it is mighty well worth while, having the right men named by the primary, and enough interest in the ultimate result to assure a full understanding of the issues and the men.

The Simoon—An Andover Show

Now that foreign travel is uninviting, and most people are afraid to take ship for India in order that they may see, for example, a famous simoon about which some of us have read but never seen, we are fortunate here in Andover to be able to guarantee an exact representation of such a delicious European treat right in our midst. To see it at its best, one should devote a time of the day when an express train is passing through the Andover station, place himself securely on the concrete platform, with one arm wound around one of the posts, face directly toward the west, throw back the coat collar, and, if possible, leave both coat and vest unbuttoned so that the full force of the demonstration may be enjoyed. With all this preparation, just before the Bar Harbor express, for example, passes through the station, a whistle, a roar, ten million particles of dust to the cubic inch lifted by the onrushing train into a whirling, swirling cloud, and five minutes later one is firmly convinced that the most effective simoons that have yet been made note of, are manufactured almost hourly at the Boston and Maine Railroad station in Andover.

Of all the fool propositions that one could find in a day's journey, that is the latest at the local station, where a carload or so of macadam dust, without any binder to hold it in place, has been put upon the crushed stone in front of the station, in lieu of a proper walk for the people who take the trains. If the reorganization of the Boston and Maine depends upon the sort of brain power measured by that which has been exhibited in doing this latest "improvement" at the Andover station, then the sooner the road has a receiver, the quicker there will be a complete reorganization. The peastone previously used was highly satisfactory. The change noted above, marks not only a sad waste of money but a great discomfort to the public.

Editorial Cinders

The opening of the public schools brings into notice the situations controlling the beginning and the ending of the local public school system, that are very interesting. The entering classes are smaller than for many years. The attendance at the High School is larger than ever in its history. The reason for the former condition may be directly traced to the opening of the parochial school, which has drawn nearly a hundred children away from the public school service. The reason for the latter condition is not as easily understood, but friends of the school and the present administration may probably claim that it is due to the present service of high standing. There is no question but that the high school problem is now an acute one in Andover, from the standpoint of proper schoolroom facilities. The public has got to take up the problem pretty soon, willing to consider it to the end and determine once for all just what the development shall be. That the public may know the situation from personal contact with it, may we suggest that everyone who is interested in it, keep in pretty close touch with conditions and results there for the coming term, so that before another year has passed, the town may decide wisely as to the best course to follow in either restricting future growth, or in providing for it.

It is unfortunate that there should be quite as much criticism as there is, over the award of the prizes at the Flower Show, but it is not surprising that such criticism should follow, where the awards are made in some cases by personal friends of those who receive the prizes. In the interest of results that could not be charged up to personal friendship, whatever else might be said about them, the Townsman would suggest that hereafter the judges be selected from people outside of the town. We are sure that some of our good friends in Methuen or North Andover could be called upon to perform this service, and that judges could be found who would be impartial and judicial.

Yes, it is true that burglars may be admitted into Andover, and it is true that they sometimes may get away without much objection. But why shouldn't policemen eat just as well as other people, and take baths too, and more important than anything else, nothing should interfere with the majestic pose in Andover Square, maintained through the evening hours. Burglars may come and burglars may go, but the majesty of the law must always be upheld—"in pause."

It is reported on good authority that there is only about three miles of highway now opened up at one time between Andover and Boston, all in one locality. It would seem as if bad management must be in control somewhere, that would discommodate the public for only this distance. The result of it is that fewer people are taking the through trip than ever before, and the through highway is having a little less travel than usual. What a job it is for somebody, somewhere, to discover a satisfactory road surface!

Oh, these early frosts! How we do dislike to see them come. Hardly is the foliage brought to perfection, or the bloom made to reach its most attractive form, before Jack Frost gets busy and cleans it all up in a night. May Spring come soon.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS REOPEN

Nearly 1200 Pupils Enrolled. High School Has Largest Number of Scholars in Its History

School opened on Tuesday of this week with an enrollment of approximately 1175 pupils, including those in the high school. The superintendent expects this enrollment to increase to 1200 before another week.

In the high school the largest entering class in its history have registered their names, 68 being the number on Wednesday, the total number being 181. This may decrease as the year goes on, but it is a school to be proud of. The first grade in the center school has considerably fallen off as to numbers on account of the opening of the parochial school by St. Augustine's church. There is a slight falling off in the upper grades also, but the average is very much the same as in other years.

There is very little crowding in the schools, the only exception being at the Indian Ridge school in the fifth and sixth grades. Several of the regular fifth grade pupils will be moved to Miss Moriarty's room, she also teaching the fifth grade.

In the high school twenty-four movable desks and chairs have been provided in the assembly hall and blackboards have been placed here also. Thus the increased number of pupils have been provided for.

The new desks for the principal's room in the Bradlee school have not yet arrived but they are expected this week. The old ones were taken to the high school for use there. The new desks for the North school addition have also been delayed, but by next week the superintendent hopes they will be in readiness.

Miss Myer, the music teacher, was in town this week looking over her field of work. She visited the schools and will begin active teaching next Monday. All the schools will be visited once in two weeks on either Monday or Tuesday, with the exception of the high school which will receive instruction in music every week.

Miss Barrett, teacher of drawing, was also in town and she will come to the schools on Wednesdays and Thursdays. Mr. Lunt, teacher of manual training will have Thursdays and Fridays as his special days, and Miss Brown, as the teacher of physical culture, will visit the schools on Mondays and Fridays. Next week the actual school life will be in full swing.

OBITUARIES

REV. DEAN A. WALKER

Rev. Dean A. Walker, formerly pastor of the West Parish church, died at his home in Auburndale Sunday.

The news of his death came as a shock to his former parishioners and friends in this town, for although they knew of his ill health, hope for his recovery was in the hearts of all who knew him.

Mr. Walker came as pastor of the West church after the resignation of Rev. J. Edgar Park, and up to a year ago had nearly filled his position. A gradual breaking down of his health forced him to resign from the pastorate at West Parish and he moved with his family to Auburndale in hopes of recovery. Heart failure, however, caused his sudden demise.

Mr. Walker was the son of Mrs. Eliza Harding Walker, founder of the Walker Home for Missionary Children at Auburndale. He was born fifty-four years ago, and was a graduate of Yale University, class of 1884, and also of the Yale Divinity School. Besides his widow, he leaves a son, Wendell Augustus Walker; a brother, Frederick William Walker; and two sisters, Mrs. Harriet Eliza Walker and Mrs. John P. Harding.

MRS. KATHERINE FRAIZE

A sad death occurred last week Thursday when Mrs. Joseph Fraize, Jr., passed away after giving birth to a baby boy, who also died. Mrs. Fraize, who was Miss Katherine Cole before her marriage, was born in Scotland and had lived in this country only a short time. She was popular, however, among her friends and her sad death caused much sorrow among them. Besides her husband she leaves a mother and several sisters in Scotland to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place Sunday at her late home on North Main street, both mother and baby resting in one casket, the little one's head pillowed on the mother's arm. Services were conducted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow of the South church, and burial took place in the Spring Grove cemetery. Beautiful flowers gave evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held, the following being noted:

Pillow marked "Wife" and spray of roses marked "Baby," from the husband; spray of asters, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fraize; spray gladioli, Mr. and Mrs. George Fraize; spray asters, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fraize; spray Miss Rose Fraize; basket, Mr. and Mrs. Cashman and Mrs. Daniels; spray asters, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher; spray gladioli, Mr. and Mrs. McGuire; spray asters, Mr. and Mrs. William Baker; spray asters, Viola Cashman and Emma Daniels; spray gladioli, Walter, Bertha and Gladys Baker; spray asters, Mrs. John Fraize, Mrs. Cole; spray roses, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cole; spray asters, Miss Elliott; wreath, Wm. Collins; basket, The Hillside; spray of asters, Miss Margaret Young; spray of asters, Miss Minnie Young; spray of asters, Miss Nellie McCade; spray of asters, Miss McFarland; spray of asters, E. M. Anderson and N. Reynolds; spray carnations, Miss Catherine Reynolds; spray gladioli, Mrs. Frazer.

Essex Agricultural Society

The premium list for the ninety-fourth annual fair of the Essex Agricultural Society which will be held at Topsfield, is printed and copies may be had by applying to various officials. Andover is interested in that George L. Averill is one of the vice-presidents of this society and Samuel H. Bailey is one of the trustees. The exhibition will consist of cattle, horses and other animals, carriages and farming implements, poultry, fruit, vegetables, canned goods and a children's department. The fair takes place on September 22 and 23.

Still They Come—From Europe

The Franconia arriving in Boston on Sunday had among its returning tourists a notable Phillips Academy delegation, including Rev. M. W. Stackpole and family, and Principal Stearns's son, also Instructor Charles A. Farnellee. Mr. Stackpole brought many pictures and slides from his tour in Egypt and Palestine, the enjoyment of which will doubtless be shared in the future by Andover citizens as well as the academy students. Miss Marion Park has also arrived in Andover, being a passenger on the Holland-American line from Rotterdam. She has spent most of the summer in Germany, and had a most interesting and adventurous experience in starting homeward from that country just after the beginning of hostilities. As the railroad had been torn up at the frontier she and her companions got an old horse and cab to continue the journey to some other point, but they suddenly were confronted by a part of the German army entering Belgium and marching along the same road, which they monopolized for two or three days! When that had passed our travelers obtained some sort of a passport which would enable them—on foot—to recross the border into Germany, and after various experiences they succeeded in reaching Berlin and in due time reached Rotterdam.

Miss Emily Richards arrived in New York on Tuesday from England, via the Saxonia, and reached her home on Morton street on Wednesday. Miss Edith Aldred, nurse at Abbot Academy, was also a passenger on the Saxonia. A message comes from Cambridge expressing anxiety as to Professor Bierwirth, well known in Andover, supposed to be in Germany. Professor Platner is understood also to be on the continent.

A still later arrival—on the Laconia Wednesday morning—was that of Judge Marcus Morton, with Mrs. Morton, his daughter Helen and son Marcus, who had spent the summer in Austria and Germany. Although Judge Morton is not now a resident of Andover, he is well known here, not only as son of Chief Justice Marcus Morton, whose home on the corner of School and Morton streets gave the latter street its name, but as a prominent member of the Abbot Academy board of trustees.

A regular monthly meeting of the Andover Club will be held in the club rooms on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. As the nomination of officers for the ensuing year will take place at this meeting, it is earnestly hoped that a large number of members will be in attendance. Symposium after the meeting.

Clansmen Win Many Prizes

Members of Clan Johnston, O. S. C., of this town, cleaned up the field at the annual picnic and games of the Associated Clans of Massachusetts, held at Caledonian Grove, Roxbury, on Labor Day. In the events open to members of Clans, Alexander Black of Summer street won the magnificent special prize offered by Walter Scott of New York City for the all-round athlete, member of the O. S. C. The trophy is a bronze figure of an athlete weighing seventy-five pounds, and valued at $150. Mr. Black must win it again next year in order to have it become his property. He was placed first in the 100-yard dash and 440-yard dash, third in the high jump, and was a member of the Clan Johnston relay team which defeated the Sons of St. George.

His brother, William Black, the well-known soccer fullback, was third in the 100, second in the 440, and also ran on the winning relay team. Kerr Spark, another member of Clan Johnston, ran in the relay race and was second in the half-mile. John Clemons of Pittsfield, but formerly of this town, was first in the half-mile and second in the 100, and was the fourth member of the winning relay team. These four athletes cornered $75 of the prize money offered for members.

In the bagpipe competition for marches second place was won by James Ramsey of the local clan and he was also awarded a special prize for reels and strathspeys in the same competition. It was a great day for Clan Johnston.

Board of Public Works Report

The report of the work done by the Board of Public Works for the month of August is presented herewith by Superintendent Frank L. Cole. The chief item of report is the macadamizing of Park street, a much-needed improvement.

Highway Department—During August many small repairs, such as filling in holes, cleaning up gutters, etc., have been made. About 300 ft. of ashes were placed on Lowell street near Livingston's and Phinney's. On Cross street, West Andover, stone was removed and brush cut by help obtained in that district. Alvin Jenkins was hired and has improved Salem street from the residence of Mr. Wright to the four corners at the residence of Mr. Jenkins. Park street, which has been a mud hole for so many years, has been macadamized, using Tarriva X as a binder. The street contained 3840 sq. yds., and total cost, $2,814.14. The culverts in this street were in a wretched condition, being filled up almost to the cover stones. These culverts were removed and replaced by 12-inch pipe. One catch-basin was placed at the corner of Park and Whittier streets, two at the junction of Florence and Park, and one at the head of Bartlett street on Park. Curbing was placed at the corner of Whittier and Park streets and at the corner of Bartlett street and Park. A 12-inch drain was laid on Park street from Whittier street to Florence, conveying water to Roger's Brook. The total cost of the four catch-basins, curbing, culverts and drain was $474.47. August expenditures, $5,065.41; balance, September 5, $7,763.87.

Water Department—Work is still going on at Chandler road, which will be completed in about ten days. This work was held up for about two weeks on account of unavoidable delay in obtaining pipe.

September 5, Maintenance balance, $4,156.21; Construction balance, Sept. 5, $941.69.

Sidewalks—Very little work has been done on concrete sidewalks so far this year, but work will be started at once. This year the work has been awarded to W. F. Duffee & Co. of Haverhill.

Sidewalk balance Sept. 5, $1,385.53. Park Department—Balance on Sept. 5, $742.66.

Sewer Department—Balance on Sept. 5, $426.65.

A Church Robbery

Thinking to have something unique in the way of thievery, a well-dressed man, probably a foreigner, entered St. Augustine's church last Sunday noon and robbed the poor-boxes, breaking the locks in so doing. He then asked the sexton who entered, for Fr. Riordan, but as he acted rather suspiciously the sexton turned on him. The foreigner seeing he was suspected of something out of the way, fled, and he was chased to the Tye Rubber Company coal pocket where he disappeared. A crowd gathered, the police were notified and Chief Smith was quickly on the scene. The whole factory was gone over but the thief had gone, where, no one knew. The theory is that he jumped a freight that was passing at the time at the station. It was thought at first that a large sum had been stolen, but investigation showed that the amount was small.

RECORD BREAKING FLOWER SHOW

Fifth Annual Exhibition the Best Andover Has Seen.
Entries of Flowers and Vegetables Exceed
500. The Prize List

The committee from the Andover Gardeners and Florists Club, the A. V. I. S., and the Guild have every reason to feel proud of the results of their labor in connection with the fifth annual exhibition. It was a success in every way, and all who attended Friday and Saturday witnessed the best and biggest show yet held in Andover. The entry list was the greatest of any year and this increased interest was gratifying to the promoters.

There was a large attendance each day, both of those who had entered their blossoms in the lists and those who wished to see what the town could do in the way of an exhibition.

Frye Village gardens were well represented and the blossoms which came from them figured largely among the prize winners. W. A. Trow and John Nicoll received the largest number of prizes, while M. E. Guttererson produced vegetables as well as flowers which were of A1 quality.

In the lower town hall the vegetables were exhibited and a noble array it was. West Andover here made a showing. E. W. Burt taking the cup and several smaller prizes which were given. ### Opening of Parochial School

The parochial school opened last Tuesday morning with services in St. Augustine's church. Accommodations for about one hundred pupils have been made and eighty-six little folks were registered. These are children who will enter the first three grades, the intention being to care for only the younger pupils. Everything has been done to make the school and grounds attractive, and the number of children entering is very gratifying to the promoters of the school.

After Fifty Years

In the late sixties there was strife in Canada. It was called the Fenian Raid, now almost forgotten, and was made by Irishmen who wished to conquer that part of North America and make it subject to the land across the sea. Of course there were objections raised and Canada's yeomen were called to arms to protect her from the foe.

Among those who drilled was Stephen Jackson of this town, and after fifty years his services were recognized this week by a check from the Canadian government for one hundred dollars.

The autumn foliage in all its glory now awaits you on the beautiful Shawheen.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

A Round About Paper

A knowledge of geography is almost an education. I mean not only the longitude and latitude of places but the kind of crops grown and the occupations of the people makes geography interesting and instructive.

I was astonished last week when I read the various accounts of the sending of Russian troops from Archangel to Paris, as if it was almost a miracle. So long as British ships are masters of the sea it is not at all difficult to send troops from Archangel in Russia to Ostend in Belgium. The harbour at Archangel is clear of ice for about three months every year, and by a good steamer Aberdeen, on the north east coast of Scotland, can be reached in less than a week and at Aberdeen there is a first rate railway—the Scottish Midland—and the British government can have the exclusive use of the line at any time, and can land troops at Dover or other ports on the English coast in from twelve to fourteen hours and in two hours from Dover, crossing the strip of sea which separates England from France and Belgium, the journey is at an end.

It is a great thing for England that this bit of sea cannot be crossed by German ships just now, as half a dozen British ships are on guard night and day. As I lived near Belgium for a dozen years and know the geography of the places where the month's fighting has been going on I take a languid interest in following the steady advance of the German army. Notwithstanding all the miserable details I am glad to say that I can tell pleasant reminiscences about almost every town in Belgium. Brussels, the capital, is a beautiful city, and like Edinburgh has an old low lying district full of old quaint streets and all of them sell Brussels lace. Then on the hill there are fine broad streets and magnificent buildings built of a bluish brown-stone or granite. The Town House or as they call it, the Hotel de Ville, is one of the finest buildings I ever saw. The King's residence and several churches are all grand specimens of architecture, and the picture gallery is said to have many paintings equal to any in the Louvre at Paris.

Export Trade on Silks

Special to the Boston Transcript:

New York, Sept. 8.—Large silk manufacturing concerns in this country are now making plans involving the possibility of doing an export trade on American-made fabrics. The manager for one well-known Paterson, N. J., mill says: "If England is able to keep the trade routes open between this country and the Far Eastern raw-material markets there is a good chance of American mills getting export business. The most serious question at the present time is that of the dyestuffs, but I am very confident that our American chemists and manufacturers will be able to overcome the present shortage in a little while. There is a big field open to us in South America, particularly in the Argentine. Few people in this country are aware of the fact that Buenos Aires, the capital of Argentina, takes large quantities of silks from France, as well as Paris fashions in ready-to-wear garments of silk. There is also an excellent chance of our having to supply Europe with silks. Under normal conditions, Paris has taken American-made silks, and there is every reason to believe that buyers there will turn to this country for supplies."

Local commission merchants who were over-anxious to dispose of stocks of silk piece goods now regret their haste. Certain merchants in the trade have been forced to liquidate their stocks owing to a shortage of ready cash with which to continue business, but the large mills and commission houses are not letting go of their silks except at top market levels. Many new dye manufacturing concerns have now entered the domestic field. They promise to have dyestuffs in plenty for the finishing and weaving plants before the fall season is over. The shortage of dyestuffs at present, however, is resulting in predictions of a big white silk season next spring, as agents for a good many manufacturers believe that sufficient supplies of dyes will not be available in time for early deliveries to the cutting trade.

Both wholesale and retail buyers are now in this market looking after their fall needs and supplies for early spring. Retailers are reported by large wholesale and commission houses in the market to be quietly securing supplies of "high" colors for fear that the shortage of dyes will make it exceptionally difficult to get satisfactory goods of this sort. Plain colors also are being taken by the wise buyer, while imported lines are being seized wherever offers are made. Authorities say that the trade here in imported silks, velvets and ribbons will have to do the best it can on stocks on hand, as there is very small chance of further supplies coming this year. The shortage of silks will, it is figured, make these fabrics more popular than ever this fall and create a big spring call. Many buyers for importing houses are still in Europe, not having been able to get home. Those who have returned state that it is useless to think of getting any of the goods they purchased abroad. A number are now in the local market trying to fill the gaps and breaks in their fall and spring lines with domestic silks. Cutters are beginning to forward numerous requests for shipments of goods on order. The cloak and suit trade, which has delayed placing orders until very late, is busy covering its needs. Manufacturers of petticoats and separate skirts, as well as complete costumes, are after more goods. Some are just beginning to realize that goods which did not look cheap during July and August, now are favorable even at 5 to 7 1/2 cents a yard advance.

Raw-silk supplies in this market are getting short and spot lots command high prices. Forward contracts have been checked, owing to unsatisfactory credit conditions abroad. Cablegrams from Yokohama state that sellers are pushing prices up again, as more offers for forward shipments are being made. Exchange rates, which are now on a gold basis, make the "lay-down" cost of raw material higher and places the market still more against the buyer. Some importers of Italian raw silk have started for Italy to see what the chances are for getting supplies from that country. It is feared that prices will be prohibitive. There is little question, manufacturers say, that they will have to depend on Japan and China for their supplies.

We all sat still after we got started for Brussels for a few minutes when our Gaelic friend who liked the beef steak and porter business said solemnly, "The Marquis of Anglesy would do well to be buried beside his leg."

IAN McDOUGALL.

A Health Matter

Health and fertilizer combined is my dream in the matter of disposing of kitchen garbage. If I have a mass of waste paper or old stuff fit for the dump of too great bulk to burn in the airtight stove, Mr. Wilson, for a small fee, kindly takes it away. I suppose he takes table garbage also, but in fly time, in the center of the town, no good way has been contrived for taking fly bait away every day promptly, placing it where it will best serve its generation. On a farm with beast and bird mouths ready, it is a simple affair, also the growing heap of the fertilizer, where all things not good to eat can be added daily with ashes and loam to sweeten to make the highest priced contribution to a soil humus of the best material, always finding a market.

We of the crowded slum district (and I choose the name deliberately, as this garbage business makes one of the elements in a successful slum) need a contrivance that will act quickly. I have dreamed of a small portable furnace that can perambulate under the charge of a responsible party and burn in its depths with little smoke and fuss and safety for all contracted areas, the daily output of what is a menace in the way of fly bait, setting aside its peculiar bouquet added to the air.

The neighbors' cats and the stray dogs help a little. It is a smart paper bag in which are placed such donations, that can't be opened by a hungry little brother. A bold Muskrat comes regularly from Rogers' brook in the winter for his daily lunch on what was once Rogers' flower garden, now occupied by an ash heap and a dead apple tree. This is the task nearest to me and there are others all over the town like it.

If you can't feed out your "Otts" right away to the lower order of stomach, cremate it to help raise good garden sauce.

I do not know where the unsavory solid refuse of our sewer system goes to, but the whole output cremated by means perhaps of electrical force, might prevent some baffling health conditions, which result from the use of infected fertilizers to force herbs we eat raw. But that is another story too large for my plea for a crematory for house garbage—for the homeless, landless taxpayer of the slum districts. C. H. A.

The One Sign of Christianity

(From the Newark News)

The Red Cross is the one sign of Christianity on all the battlefields of Europe, and as long as it remains there no one can say that the mission of the Great Teacher of peace on earth and good-will to men has been an entire failure. Everything else in the contesting ranks seems to be the embodiment of human hatred, of fiendish passion and of murderous intent. On all sides the agonized cry of the wounded, the moanings of the dying, the stark faces of the dead.

But amid it all the Red Cross moves, silent evidence of Christ's influence upon the sympathetic hearts of some of his humble followers and a sign of the humane sentiment which stops at no sacrifices necessary to relieve human suffering. The Red Cross knows no enemy; it restricts its work to no nationality; it recognizes the universal brotherhood of man and devotes all its energies to the mitigation of pain and to the saving of life, indifferent to the sufferer's nationality or the cause he represents.

The Red Cross knows no standard but its own. It is a world standard, under which the Japanese, Russian, British, German, French, Austrian, Slav or any other stricken soldier may call for relief and have his claim acknowledged. It is the only mission of peace in the field of war; the single and solitary assurance that a least a few devoted men and women are trying to "do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you."

It is little the Red Cross can do in comparison with the deadly devastation wrought by the fearful engines of the modern battlefield. The havoc is inexorable—thousands falling in every engagement, never to rise again. But its ministry of relief to those whose bodies are torn and bleeding and for whom a drink of cold water or a bandaged wound may mean the saving of life, is of inestimable value.

Noble women have enlisted in the Red Cross work. They have left home and friends to go into far distant lands to bind up the wounded, to soothe the last moments of the dying, to give kindly, tender help wherever and to whomsoever it may freely be given. The Red Cross exists only to help others, and nobly it deserves all the help that can be given it.

The Earliest Fog Horn

In a London nautical instrument maker's window is an interesting relic of Captain Cook in the shape of a horn which the navigator (according to the owner, in whose family it has been for nearly a century) brought back with him from the South Seas. Thither it had been taken by some venturesome sailor, who had carefully engraved upon it a fine map of the coast of North America and part of the continent from the mouth of the St. Lawrence to Lake Ontario southwards to below New York. It is said that these horns were frequently used for fog signalling purposes.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Death Through Dares

Every summer dares bring death and the record of 1914 so far shows no diminution of the usual fatalities.

Early in the season on Jamaica Bay a party of two young men and two young women in a rowboat were all drowned as the result of a dare. One of the women dared one of the young men, who had a reputation as an equilibrist, to walk around the edge or gunwale of the little boat. A girl in the boat protested and was put ashore. Then the boat returned to midstream and the stunt was tried. The young man got half way around when he slipped, tipped the boat, threw the occupants out and sent them to their death, for not one could swim.

Later in the season somebody dared Jacob Zimmerman of Brooklyn to swim a mile out into the ocean off Coney Island. He became exhausted in the heavy surf when out a short way and sank and was drowned.

At one of the city rifle ranges recently a dare was given to one of the members of a gun club to hold a half dollar piece in his fingers as a mark for one of the crack shots of the organization. The club members had little doubt of the ability of the sure shot to hit the silver piece, but they doubted the nerve of the other man to hold it. But he consented and a distance of thirty-five feet held up the mark. The shot was fired and struck his index finger. After an operation it was supposed that he was all right, with the exception of a permanently stiff finger. But later he died from blood poisoning.

At a river clubhouse a few weeks ago one of the members was dared to climb to the top of a flagstaff on the float, repeat the verse "Mary had a little lamb" and then come down, climbing head first. He got to the peak, said the verse and had just started down when the slender pole cracked and he fell and fractured his skull.

The aviation men say that the dares have been unusually busy since this new field for the suggestion of foolish stunts has been available.—New York Sun.

A Black Threat

A long wisp of artificial wheat that served as a trimming on the sweet girl's hat was placed horizontally so that it tickled up and down the face of the man who sat next to her on the bus, until it came to a resting-place with the end nestling in his right ear.

After the bus had travelled some distance the man was seen to take from his pocket a large jackknife, which he proceeded to strop on the palm of a horny hand.

Excitedly the girl inquired: "Why are you doing that?"
"If them oats gets in my ear agin," the man ejaculated, "there's goin' to be a harvest."—Tit-Bits.

Choir Boys' Outing

The boys of Christ church choir who spent last week at the William Lawrence camp in West Gloucester, enjoyed a very pleasant outing.

The camp is an ideal place for boys, situated on the bluffs overlooking the Annisquam river. The boys did have such fine times boating, bathing, and fishing.

On Sunday they attended St. John's Episcopal church in Gloucester, and had the pleasure of hearing Bishop Babcock preach.

Monday the boys played ball and after the game, which was won by the Silk Sox, they were invited to play a series of games by the Pink Sox team. The invitation was accepted and a game was played each afternoon. They were all very exciting contests, and they were also all won by the Silk Sox. Somehow the Pink Sox did not have quite punch enough to finish out in front in any of the games, though in all but one game they were the first to score. The closest contest was on Wednesday, when the score was a tie until the last half of the ninth inning, the Silk Sox getting the winning run after retiring the Pink Sox in big league style.

The following is the summary of the Wednesday game:

Interesting Criticism

The many friends of S. Richard Fuller who heard his lectures at the November Club House and again at the Archaeological Hall, under the auspices of Phillips Academy, will be interested to read the following appreciative notice. It was written by a famous literary critic, Mr. Bullon, after listening to Mr. Fuller's lectures given at the summer festival at Stratford-on-Avon.

"The art of lecturing is more seriously studied in America than in England; but I confess that Mr. S. Richard Fuller of Boston, Mass., in his lectures on 'Julius Caesar' and 'Cleopatra' far surpassed my highest expectation. To say that they were brilliant would be but a poor inadequate compliment to Mr. Fuller's wonderful gift of re-creating the past. In the Prologue to 'The Earthly Paradise' William Morris tells of a wizard who, when drear winds were piping on a December day, by art-magic made a Northern King see through one window the springtime, through another the summer, and through a third 'the fruited vines arow.' Just such a wizard is this vividly imaginative lecturer who captivates his hearers from the moment he begins to speak and holds them spell-bound to the end—with his glowing descriptions of the pride and pomp of imperial Rome, the squalor and wealth of Alexandria, the abiding mystery of 'old Nile.' He has not only made a deep study of classical authorities but he speaks from close personal observation. His knowledge of the topography of Rome is singularly extensive and exact; and he has paced the streets of Alexandria from dawn to dusk. When he spoke of the past magnificence of 'Antioch of the Golden Streets,' now a row of beggarly huts, one was stirred anew by

"the Virgilian cry,
The sense of tears in mortal things."

"At the end of the second lecture (Cleopatra) the chairman, Mr. A. D. Flower, announced to the general satisfaction of the audience, that Mr. Fuller is coming again to Stratford-on-Avon next August, and has promised to be an annual visitor at the Summer Festival."

A Sorry Tale

Now once there was a D. M. D.
Who was on pleasure bent,
He therefore hired a canoe
And up the river went.

The stream is not so very deep,
Nor far from shore to shore;
But still the water's very wet,
(I need not say much more.)

'Tis said he tried to turn around—
A dang'rous thing to do,
Especially if one is not Quite used to a canoe.

It might have been that he was stuck
Fast in the thick soft mud
That's found along the Shawheen's banks,
Where cows oft chew their cud.

At any rate he toppled o'er
And sank beneath the foam;
And as he rose, a sorry sight,
He wished that he were home.

So home he went and changed his clothes.
This chastened D. M. D.
And when he paddles forth again
May I be there to see.

And as if this were not enough,
Upon another day
Another young man, wise forsooth,
Did venture forth to play.

It seems, he too a boat did hire
To cruise upon the stream
That gently glides through Andover,
The well-known old Shawheen.

And this one also did those things
One ought not so to do
When one is paddling on a stream
In a long slim canoe.

And in he went, and he got wet;
It caused a lot of fun.
Their names I cannot fairly tell
For now my story's done.

In Memory

In sad and loving memory of our dear husband and father, David Long, who departed from this life September 5, 1911, from 16 Essex street, Andover, Mass.

Three lonely years have passed
Yet we remember well,
We watched beside your dying bed
To take our last farewell.

With tearful eyes we watched you
And saw you pass away.
Although we dearly loved you
We could not make you stay.

But you are not forgotten, dear,
Your memory shall not fade;
Our thoughts will ever linger
In Spring Grove where you are laid.

Inserted by his wife, daughter and son,

MRS. MARY J. LONG

AT THE THEATRES

Scene from "ALONG CAME RUTH"

Ruth and Allan tack furniture, read law, and make love, all at once, in the laughter-filled comedy
Now Playing at the PLYMOUTH THEATRE, BOSTON.

GAIETY THEATRE

Billy Watson and his burlesquers have a mighty good show this season and they should draw good crowds at the Gaiety next week, September 14, where they are to appear. There are some good costumes, good singing and some especially fine scenery. The show is divided into two acts and four scenes. The first act is entitled "Krousemeyer in Japan" while the final act is called "Krousemeyers Christening." The plots in both pieces will be conspicuous by their absence but will be more than offset by the large number of people who work in a remarkable manner.

The show on the whole should well be worth the patronage of the Gaiety audiences for Billy Watson is one of the big favorites who play each year at this house.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

On next Monday "Along Came Ruth" starts the third week of its engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. The refreshing charm of the play together with its quaint New England characters has fascinated playgoers to such an extent that, were it possible, Ruth might easily and happily remain in their midst for a long time. This, however, is absolutely impossible because of the pre-arranged bookings at the theatre. Therefore, if you would witness this unusual and delightful comedy of New England and its people you had better avail yourself of the present opportunity. The piece is written by Holman Day, recognized as one of the most versatile writers of New England life, and frequently called the "Kipling of New England." Mr. Day has instilled into his life-like characters plenty of good, wholesome comedy, with the result that from beginning to end the play goes with a bang.

Remember that the custom of the Plymouth Theatre management regarding mail orders assures the sender of the very best attention. Send in your mail order now and make sure that your check or money order is payable to Fred E. Wright. The regular Thursday and Saturday matinees are given.

BOSTON THEATRE

The magnificent personal triumph of Dustin Farnum in his sensational popular-priced engagement at the Boston Theatre the past two weeks has induced Manager Leahy to retain him for the coming week. That the standard of these popular-priced star attractions may be increased from week to week Mr. Leahy has also secured Dustin Farnum's brother, William Farnum, and together the brothers will present a mammoth revival of the most stirring of all war plays, "The Littlest Rebel." It was in "The Littlest Rebel" that the two Farnum brothers scored their greatest Boston success at this same theatre two years ago and the only difference between the production seen then and the one which will be staged next week is in the fact that the former was presented at standard prices while this time it will be offered at popular prices of from 10 cents to 50 cents with a few in the evenings at 75 cents. No play produced in years is possessed of the human interest and the stirring punch of "The Littlest Rebel."

A large array of supernumeraries will be engaged and carefully drilled for the wonderful battle scene. Arrangements have been made to stage the play with the same mammoth scenic equipment used in the original production.

CORT THEATRE

Duplicating its phenomenal triumphs in other cities, "Peg O' My Heart," the famous comedy of youth and laughter by J. Hartley Manners, has taken Boston by storm and has played to absolute capacity at the Cort Theatre there since its opening on Labor Day. Oliver Morosco, owner of "Peg O' My Heart," has announced that he intends to keep his big success in Boston for a full year and the members of the company are so sure that his promise will be made good that they have embarked on a general hunt for apartments to settle down for their long stay. Miss Martin's personal success in the difficult role of Peg has won for her instant popularity and she has lived up to the statement by Mr. Morosco that she is the best of all the Pegs next to Miss Laurette Taylor the original. The cast of "Peg O' My Heart" was especially selected by Mr. Morosco for Boston and he says it is the best that has ever enacted the celebrated comedy. In addition to Miss Martin it includes H. Reeves Smith, Hassard Short, Peter Bassett, Miss Lisle Leigh, Miss Alma Tell, Miss Amy Clarke, Lewis Broughton and Frank Burbeck. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday during the Boston engagement and special attention will be paid to mail orders.

Reading Fair

Final arrangements were completed last evening by the officers and executive committee of the Quannapowitt Agricultural Society for the annual Quannapowitt or Reading Fair on the old Wakefield-Reading fair grounds on the last four days of next week, September 16, 17, 18, and 19. Over $5000 in cash prizes is being spent by the management to make the fair program the best ever offered in Middlesex county.

Besides the horse-racing program, for which $2700 in purses have been hung up, there will be a championship baseball series game each afternoon between the Wakefield and Reading teams and the All-Woburn and Stoneham teams. A $500 gold prize grange contest in which the Reading, North Reading, Saugus, Melrose, Stoneham, and Wakefield granges will compete, together with a $200 prize health baby show and a grand athletic meet for local amateurs are special features.

Ruth Bancroft Law, the daring girl aviator, will make an aeroplane flight each afternoon, and a professional aeronaut will do a balloon ascension and double parachute drop stunt. Vaudeville shows will be given every day with a band concert. The exhibition of livestock, cattle, poultry, swine, vegetables, fruit and women's handwork, together with the prize school garden contest and individual school pupils' competition in an agricultural exhibit are to be the big attraction of the fair proper. The State Agricultural Association has endorsed the fair as one of the very best in the state. It is not run for profit but for the education of the people and arousing their interest in agriculture.

The old-fashioned plowing and drafting matches and the work horse parade will open the fair on Wednesday morning. There will be three fast purse races between over 100 New England circuit trotters and pacers each afternoon, and on Saturday an interclub matinee series of eight races will be held between the Fellaway, Quannapowitt, and Lynn Driving clubs. Wednesday will be traders' day at the fair and Friday will be Governor's day. The big athletic meet will be held on Saturday morning and will be in charge of Walter S. Campbell of North Reading.

Andover Natural History Society

The next regular meeting of the Andover Natural History Society will be held in the School Committee room on Tuesday, September 15, at 8 p.m. Principal N. C. Hamblin, M. E. Guttererson and others will give a talk on their recent trip through the Presidential Range of the White Mountains. Botanical specimens secured on the trip will be shown. Friends interested are invited.

OPENING OF SOCCER SEASON

Andover 5, Clans 1

Andover opened its soccer season by defeating the Clans Saturday in a Lawrence, Lowell and District league game, five goals to one. The Clans started one man short and were further handicapped by an accident to Lambert, who had to leave the field early in the game. From the start the result was never in doubt; this had the effect of slowing up the players, and a rather poor game resulted. The contest was further marred by a bad accident to Captain Rae of the Andover side, who severely twisted his arm and was forced to retire.

Andover took the field looking well in their new uniforms, and the Clans kicked off. Andover at once got down and after a miscalculation by Lambert Smith stepped out and cleared. A foul here gave the Clans relief. Twice the Clans came down, but Brown shot past and Jackson again cleared. Doherty placed well for Skea, but Smith dropped a hard shot, the ball bounding to Black who shot over. Again Smith was called upon with Cairnie well in but cleared. Andover was continually in range now, and Doherty made little use of a good pass from Deyermund. Lambert here had to leave the field and with the one-back game Andover was held for offense very often. The game was tame at this stage, when a corner followed by another found Skea crossing to Deyermund who shipped it back to the goal mouth where Black headed through.

At the other end J. Deyermund had an easy shot to hold for his first try. W. Rae was holding the Clans' left wing with apparent ease, but his long punts were being wasted on the forwards who were playing listlessly. The next goal was a hummer from the touch line by Skea, Smith being beaten all the way. Graham got through, but shot high over. Andover got back again and from a good pass by Skea Deyermund scored the third goal. Half time—Andover 3, Clan McPherson 0.

The game opened with Andover doing the pressing and soon Doherty scored from a corner kick. For a long time the Clans found it difficult to cross the center of the field. Finally the visitors got down but Brown shot past. Back they came and when Renne and Rae missed, Anderson slipped through and scored. It was in this play that W. Rae wrenched his shoulder and was forced to leave the game. The game livened up for a while, during which time George Rae put up a splendid game in the backfield for the Clans. Smith was kept busy during the half, but was ever ready and saved in good style. Graham missed with J. Deyermund out of his goal and the ball swung to the other end, where W. Deyermund from a good pass by Doherty had no trouble in scoring the fifth.

The teams:

ANDOVER—J. Deyermund; Rae, Jackson; Coleman, Doig and Rennie; W. Deyermund, Cairnie, Black, Doherty and Skea.

CLANS—Smith; Lambert and G. Rae; Somerville, Emsley; Graham, Morrison, Anderson, Brown and Law.

Referee, Pat D'Arcy of Lawrence

Andover 2, General Electric 0

On Monday afternoon Andover defeated the General Electrics of Lynn in a hard-fought game on the cricket field. Andover had the advantage in the first half, but there was no scoring.

On resuming Andover had changed their line-up, but for the first ten minutes the visitors did the pressing without, however, getting within shooting distance of Deyermund. Gradually the fine work of Black and Coleman told and the home forwards, given splendid support, bore down on Kirton and Turnbull. Low tried Leake with a hot shot but the keeper got rid of it. On the right Coleman started a movement and Deyermund ran the line well, squared to the goal mouth where Skea crossing over took possession and gave the goal-keeper no chance to save. Shortly after the same player beat Kirton and shot with terrific force, but the ball went behind. Andover continued to have the best of the play and Doig, who was well set, netted the second goal from a good pass with the defence at a standstill.

Final score—Andover 2, General Electrics 0. The teams:

ANDOVER—J. Deyermund; Skea, Jackson; Coleman, Black and Sprunt; W. Deyermund, Low, Doig, Doherty and Neil.

GENERAL ELECTRICS—Leake; Kirton and Turnbull; Martin, T. Spence and Sheridan; J. Spence, Robertson, O'Neil, Dear and Cuthbert.

Referee, T. Ritchie, Lowell.

Thistles 10, Lawrence Juniors 2

In the opening game of the Junior league the Thistles easily defeated the Lawrence Juniors on the playstead by ten goals to two. The visitors started short-handed and were at no time a match for the champions who might just as easily have doubled the score.

The teams:

THISTLES—Spark; Robb and Eaton; Anderson, Gorrey and Nicoll; Kil-lackey, Caldwell, F. Lynch, J. Lynch and Carnathan.

Referee, Mr. Ratcliffe of Lawrence.

Designation of Cadet to U. S. Military Academy

Congressman John Jacob Rogers of the Fifth Congressional District of Massachusetts has sent out a circular in regard to the designation of a candidate for cadet to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point from this district. He is entitled to designate one principal and two alternates, one alternate to take the principal's place if he fails of examination.

Congressman Rogers wishes young men of the ages between seventeen and twenty-two to take a preliminary examination, similar to the one required for admission to the Academy, at the High School, Kirk street, Lowell, to be held on October 21. The examination will be on the subjects of algebra, geometry, grammar, geography and history (general and United States), and six hours is the limit of time allowed for this work.

The first three men who qualify at this time will be examined by the official medical examiners probably in November, and if all three pass the test they will be designated in order of their mental rank.

No expense except carfare is involved in this examination, and it is open to all young men who care to try for it. The official examination for the Academy will be held on March 16, 1915, at Fort Banks, Massachusetts.

Copies of Congressman Rogers' circular and other pamphlets relative to this examination will be sent on request. All those desiring the same are asked to furnish their names, addresses and dates of birth not later than October 15 to Mr. Rogers, who will be glad to see that they are supplied with all data.

WHAT THE MAN IN THE MOON MIGHT SEE

Did you Townsman readers see the moon rise Monday night? Well, if you didn't you missed a most beautiful sight. I watched it rise over the pines in back of the house and, if I could "eulogize" or "enthuse" the way some folks can I'd do so and describe this wonderful phenomenon of Nature. But I can't use the expressive language the way I wish I could so I'll just say it was grand.

The air was cool and clear, the moon a little past the full and I tell you it was to me, as I stood on the hill, with the stars shining away off, the greatest moving picture ever.

And I wondered as I stood there, what if there really was a man in the moon, and he could look down on this planet, or up to it (I don't know anything about astronomy and the relative positions of the various stars) what would he think of this Earth, especially now when the hideous happenings across the water are going on. I'm not going to comment on the war; I don't know enough about it in the first place, and if I did, I'd try and keep my tongue still about it. Which-ever side is right, whichever side wins, the war itself is just too terrible to realize in these supposedly enlightened times.

Europe and Mexico aren't the only countries where the beautiful spots are being made waste and the waste places more so. In this country, in dear old New England, called "the vacation land of America," there are some pretty bad waste places that need to be cleaned up.

I took a trip a few weeks ago, this time going on the train, and there were some dreary sights along with the pleasant ones. Old barns and sheds falling to pieces, old fences trailing along, here the ruins of a house that had been burned, there an ash and rubbish heap displayed to public gaze, all these things I saw as I went past in the train, and the pity of it was that they detracted my attention from the things beyond, the beautiful things of the world, the mountains with the clouds resting on their tops, the sunny valleys where cattle grazed contentedly. Nature's wonders were excluded for a moment while I gazed on man's ugliness.

As I watched the moon rise the other night and imagined that the Man in the Moon was looking at me, I just put on my child thinking cap and wondered if he saw all these things too. For all we're so civilized we aren't grown up enough to want to keep things looking nice all the time. We had rather destroy than keep perfect that which we have or have made. We want to knock down our block houses and pull our dolls to pieces and break up our trains to see what they are made of, and then we leave the rubbish scattered 'round and look for a new toy.

Oh we have lots of beauty spots here; Andover itself is a beauty spot, but there are still rubbish heaps to be covered. It takes time I know. Over in Europe, they're making rubbish heaps just about as fast as they know how; we'd do it here if we were at war. And for what end? One side says one thing and the other side says another, but after all I don't believe anyone really knows.

And the Man in the Moon looked to me the other night, as he rose up over the pines with his head a little askew, as if he wondered too, why we didn't stop making new rubbish heaps and start to clear up the ones already made. The moon is a dead world, the big men who know, say. This earth may be some day, and it looks to me as if we might take a little advice from the Man in the Moon and stop making waste places for other generations to clean up, for after all "What's the use?"
